

Utopia

Sitting on a rock
Sunshine on the water
Blue sky, slow jazz music
I feel like on holiday
I'm very calm
And excited for what I might become
I smell fir trees, cow's pat, fresh cut grass
And a marvellous spaghetti sauce with almonds and olive oil
Hot spices
I can feel the tree at my back
Old friends
The sound of crickets chirping
Sadness
Sound of the waves
Clear water in a big lake
Slight waves
I see a beach with sand, green grass and trees
Sea breeze
I feel free

Utopia II

sitting between two branches
strange sounds during the night
warm pyjamas with feet
water cooling down the heat.
cat walking over the grass, time to think and dream
concert of singing birds,
the sound of boots crunching,
family friends
the feeling of belonging and absolute freedom,
feeling of freedom
quiet atmosphere, waves shore
water is flowing
the wind is blowing
skin is gently touched by the wind and sun
warm dry breeze under trees
food only cooked on wood fire
good walking shoes, mountains
waterfall splashing down a piece of rock
sounds of waterfall
sound of silence
nature
and the best raspberry ice cream

Summer Impression

Grandma gives water to the flowers.
Somebody tells a joke.
A child laughs.

Children are jumping into the swimming pool.
Some water fountains are splashing.
Sweat is running down.
A fly is buzzing around.
A woman is licking an ice-cream.
People are sitting in a café and drinking beer.
A cup of tea is falling down and breaking into pieces.
An old lady is going out with her dog.
An ambulance is passing.

It starts raining.
Water flows over the street.
Nobody thinks up a story.

How to do it:
Think about what could happen in the next 10 minutes.
Write a sentence on each small slip of paper.
Put the poem together.

Silly sentences (Similes)

As cool as a terrible volcano
Fast enough to jump over the chair
To eat so much it would smash everything into bits and pieces
To fight like a waiter before closing time
A ship is like a mistake on your first day as teacher
A policeman like a policeman calling for help

As funny as Einstein's theories about the universe.
Crippled enough to tiptoe through a strawberry field.
To love so much it would help me to understand all your long and beautiful dreams.
To walk like a child winning first place.
A teacher is like a whisky bottle, forgotten on the lonely beach.
A priest like football knocking over a Ming vase.

As lucky as Mount Everest in wintertime
Sly enough to build up new dreams
To eat so much it would make a hard man cry his eyes out
To laugh like a slow dog on his walk to the Aare
A drawer is like a nutshell around a mussel.
A postman like a tiger reintroduced to the jungle after months in zoo.

Dialogue

Hell
Heaven's better
Would you say
Course! Didn't you agree?
Of course, I agree definitely!
What are you doing in heaven?
I am going to an English course!
Gosh! Me too. Isn't it astonishing?
Yes, it is definitely perfect!
Nice, having a friend.
Yes, it is.
Meet later?
Yes

How to do it:

A writes down one word, B write 2 words as an answer, A 3 words ... up to 7 words in the line. Than go backwards to one.

Do two dialogues at the same time, so both pupils have to do something.

A real Pirate Story

There is a	storm	over Scotland.
The	leaves	rush by an old castle
and the	wind	blows into an old, shabby flag.
Far away a pirate ship is	sailing
Towards a sandy	white	beach
Where a	bride	is waiting
for the	groom
taking	flowers	to the castle

How to do it:

A starts with one word in the middle.

B writes an association under this word.

A & B continues like this up to 8 words.

B writes a sentence or line around the top word.

A continues and writes a line with the next word, and so on.
